Home for Boys Representative Visits Grayling.

Mrs. I. M. Curl, Battle Creek, is in the city in the interests of the Starr Commonwealth for Boys, of Albion, for the purpose of soliciting funds for that institution. This appears to be a very worthy institution and Mrs. Curl has received many generous donations from our citizens.

The object of the institution is to maintain a real home for the homeless, friendless and dependent boy; to give to the wild, wayward child of the streets, the so called "bad boy," a chance to make good; to direct, wisely and lovingly, the misunderstood, badgered and beaten child of ignorant or immoral parents; and to provide for the incorrigible sons of even well-to-do parents, a normal, healthful environment, where the lads will be taught the meaning of responsibility and the purpose of law.

In no sense is the Commonwealth a prison. It is not a detention home nor a reform school. There are no bolts nor bars.

A Custard Secret.
The best custards ever made have not been baked on the oven floor. The tried and true method to make the delicious custard is one quart of fresh milk, scalded in a double boiler. No more nor less than four eggs, beaten and stirred into one cup of granulated sugar. Always lemon extract, with a pinch of nutmeg for the delicate custard. It kills the egg flavor. Now, here is your secret, place it in a pan of boiling water in the oven, cover your baking dish, bake it just one-half hour in a warm but not too hot oven. Insert a silver knife in the middle of the custard. If it comes out clean, the custard is done, otherwise the ingredients stick to the knife.

Grayling People Praise Simple Mixture.
Many in Grayling praise the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler's. This remedy is the most THOROUGH bowel cleanser ever sold, being even used successfully in appendicitis. ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it the gasses rumble and pass out. Adler's cannot gripe and the INSTANT action is surprising. A. M. Lewis, druggist.

Recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
"Last winter I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a bad bronchial cough. I felt its beneficial effect immediately and before I had finished the bottle I was cured. I never tire of recommending this remedy to my friends," writes Mrs. William Bright, Ft. Wayne, Ind. Obtainable everywhere.

School Districts Reorganized.
The township board of Grayling township, at a meeting held Oct. 2nd, reorganized the school district of the township having at a previous meeting disorganized defunct and all fractional districts, and the territory added to districts having an organization and holding school. To district No. 1 was added 12 sections of land; to district No. 2 was added 7 sections; the Stephens district, known as No. 9 was changed to district No. 3 and 4 sections added; the Wakeley district, known as No. 11, is now district No. 4 and has 6 sections added; No. 8 changed to district No. 5 and contains all territory in Town 27 north 3 west, west also north 3 of north 3 of section 4 Town 26 range, 2 west. District No. 6 retains the same number and has 9 sections added and now contains all territory in Township 27 north 3 west. These changes place all territory in the Grayling assessing district of 5 Townships under school control and brings in 34 sections of land having an assessed valuation of about $65,000 under taxation for school purposes.

The added territory gives to Grayling School district No. 1 an added valuation of over $22,000. All other school districts effected by this change are greatly benefited. The added territory is located in territory that previously had no school or was unorganized.

MR. THOS. CASSIDY SELECTED
Well Known, Progressive Baker Has Secured Exclusive Franchise.

The rise of Mr. Thos. Cassidy in the business world is one of the bright signs of the times. From a small beginning he has risen to a position of importance and high standing in the community by the sheer force of enterprise and indomitable energy, and his achievements have won for him a most generous patronage and extensive friendship.

This has attracted the attention of the United Retail Merchants' association, who are locating distributing branches in more than one hundred cities and towns in Michigan, and when they decided to place a redeeming station in Grayling, giving due importance to the location, reputation, character of the business, convenience and accessibility to the public, having under consideration several of our most progressive stores, the choice finally rested upon Mr. Thos. Cassidy and he will have charge of the special features and free distributions offered by the United Retail Merchants' association in connection with the redeeming station.

More than that. The one hundred and fifty national manufacturers in New York, Chicago and elsewhere whose products will be sold through the United Retail Merchants' Association, after due investigation, are much gratified with the selection of Mr. Thos. Cassidy to operate the redeeming station in this city, his name will become of national interest and his fame throughout the country is assured.

The merchants of Grayling, who will fully realize the advantages accruing from the promotion and sale of good products by the extensive publicity campaign and the combined effort of the United Retail Merchants' Association, and who realize that this movement will enable them to do a larger amount of business at less expense than ever before, thus mutually benefiting all trade, will be glad of the selection of such a representative merchant as Mr. Thos. Cassidy to operate the redeeming station.

Also the general public, friends of Mr. Thos. Cassidy as a baker of the highest character and reputation, will be rejoiced to learn of such a popular choice, realizing that co-operation is the spirit of the times and that they cannot fail to profit by this movement.

SOME OF THE BOYS AT THE STARR COMMONWEALTH.

Chronic Constipation.
"About two years ago when I began using Chamberlain's Tablets I had been suffering for some time with stomach trouble and chronic constipation. My condition improved rapidly through the use of these tablets. Since taking four or five bottles of them my health has been fine," writes Mrs. John Newton, N. Y. Obtainable everywhere.

Why It Pays to Trade With Firms That Advertise.
Advertising creates sales. The modern business man knows this. He knows also that he must depend upon many sales with a small profit, rather than on a few with big profits on each. The world knows the firm that advertises most can sell cheapest.

TWO DAY TRIP IS GREAT SUCCESS

AUTOMOBILE CARAVAN COVERS TWO ROUTES FROM LANSING TO GRAND RAPIDS.

$400,000 IS SUBSCRIBED

Enthusiasm Along Both Routes Is So Great That Choosing Is Made Difficult Task For Director.

Lansing—With bands playing and the greatest enthusiasm prevailing, the caravan of automobiles that left here Friday morning for Grand Rapids arrived in Lansing Saturday night, recording one of the greatest efforts yet made for the Wolverine paveway, a proposed highway from Detroit to Grand Rapids.

Vice-President Prudden announced that nearly $400,000 had been subscribed and subscriptions are coming in daily.

Percy Wilson, of Chicago, official of the National Association of Cement Manufacturers, who made the trip, says that nothing in this country has ever compared with the efforts of the Wolverine association. That the road will be a success practically assured.

The return trip from Grand Rapids to Lansing was made via Cascade, Alto, Clarksville, Lanta, Odessa and Sunfield, a route that is desirable but as yet not determined due to the Iowa Portland, Saranac route which the automobile caravan traversed Friday on the trip to Grand Rapids. The board of directors must decide which route is to be named, and as there is so much enthusiasm along both routes there is some question which one will be favored.

The small town of Alto subscribed $40,000 Saturday.

The proposed road, if built of cement or macadam, will cost upwards of $2,000,000, and there will be an untold effort to build it of such material. But in the event funds are not available, it is almost certain a gravel road will be built.

The road would connect the metropolis of the state with Grand Rapids, second largest city in the state, with the capital of the state, a point half way between.

NINE ENTOMBED MINERS RESCUED

TAKEN OUT AFTER SIX DAYS SPENT IN COLD UNDERGROUND DUNGEON

TWO HUNDRED AID RESCUE

Men Are Found On Top of Chute Where They Had Crawled to Escape Stream of Water.

Lansford, Pa.—Nine mine workers entombed in the Foster creek tunnel of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation company, at Coaldale, at noon Monday, were taken out alive at 4:25 Sunday afternoon.

They were found on top of a chute in which they had crawled to escape a flood of water that had broken from an abandoned working and caused more than 300 feet of gangway roof to fall, shutting off means of escape.

The men are in the hospital at Coaldale and reports from there hold promise that all will recover.

The rescue was accomplished after 200 mine workers and company officials had battled for six days against discouraging conditions in the choked-up gangway. Their task was made more difficult by a threefoot stream of water which flowed from an adjoining working and which could be regulated only by constant operation of many pumps.

After blasting and tearing away more than 300 feet of solid rock, coal and timbers that had been wedged tightly into the gangway by the fall of roof, rescue forces early Sunday reached an open space back of chute No. 24, down which the stream of water poured from the undermined source.

Once more, their work was checked by the presence of an even deeper flow of water and a wooden platform, resembling a large raft, was built above the surface of the water and further progress was made toward the chutes in which they had taken refuge.

At the top of chute No. 27, down which the coal from upper veins is thrown to the loading cars, the pitiful group of huddled humanity was discovered. It was intensely cold in the little space and the rescuers found the nine men, two of whom are scarcely out of their teens, curled up into a compact mass to retain the warmth of their bodies.

All were terribly weakened by their 150 hours of waiting and praying, and with wan faces up-lifted and eyes blinking at the strain of the unfamiliar lights, the men in weak voices shouted greetings to their rescuers.

The large barns on the William Olney farm west of Sturgis, occupied by Elmer Miller, were destroyed by fire which started from a threshing outfit. All of this year's crops were also destroyed, but the implements and live stock were saved. The loss is about $20,000, with $15,000 insurance.

The supreme court has decided that the cloud should be lifted from the title of a tract of tax homesteaded between Muskegon lake and Bear lake, purchased at a tax sale by the city of Muskegon in 1903, to be used for a public park.

Dr. H. L. Faust, of Lansing, member of the state animal industry commission, has completed a survey of conditions around Albion in respect to the presence of the hoof and mouth disease among cattle. He stated that there were no signs of the disease in the vicinity.

WARNS PUBLIC AGAINST STOCK MARKET GAMBLING

SAMUEL UNTERMEYER.

New York—"Never in the history of the stock exchange has the public been threatened by so dangerous a pitfall as that which is now wide open for its victims," declared Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the government in the money trust investigation, Monday, in a letter to Rev. C. F. Reiser, replying to a request for expert information.

Untermyer declared that it is "worse than hopeless" for the average man to try to win a fortune in the stock market and asserted that "in the end they all lose." He characterized the present market activity as "a feverish wave of wild and senseless speculation that has seized the general public, spreading like wild fire from ocean to ocean, and for which the public will, as usual, pay dearly in the end."

JOHN D. JR.'S PLAN ADOPTED

Union Scheme of Young Rockefeller Is Accepted By Representatives of the Miners.

Pueblo, Col.—Collective bargaining, insured by a contract signed and sealed with a term of years, was promised Saturday by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to the employees of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. The contract was embodied in the industrial plan submitted by Mr. Rockefeller at a meeting of officers of the company and grievance representatives from the various coal camps. The plan carries a guarantee against discrimination against members of any union manner members of any union but does not provide for recognition of the United Mine Workers of America.

The industrial system outlined at the conference is looked upon as the Rockefeller answer to the demands of the United States Mine Workers—demands which in 1913 led to one of the most bitter industrial conflicts in the history of the country. Mr. Rockefeller himself has steadfastly maintained that his plan is not an attack upon unionism, but that it is "broader and more democratic" than the system advocated by the miners' organization.

The plan was approved by unanimous vote at a meeting of mine officers and miners' representatives here Saturday. It will be submitted to the board of directors of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. and to a referendum vote of the miners at all the camps for final adoption.

Killed While Sawing Limb. Fenton—Seated on the limb of an oak tree 40 feet from the ground, William Coon was struck on the forehead by a snapping branch with such force that his neck was broken. He fell into a crotch of the tree and his back was fractured. When his body was finally extricated from its lodgment several hours later, a physician gave it as his opinion that the first injury had caused death.

Coon had gone out with a party from here to rob a bees' nest in a large oak tree two miles north.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Fred Elliott, of Hickory Corners, a prominent road builder of Barry county, has started throughout the townships a movement which will result in requesting the supervisors at their coming session to submit to the voters at the spring election the proposition of placing the county under the county roads system.

Several non-resident wholesale liquor dealers are doing business in Michigan without having paid the $500 license fee and giving the necessary bond, in the opinion of Auditor-General Fuller.

Annual meeting of Barry County Pioneer society will be held in Hastings, October 8. Among the speakers will be Judge Clement Smith, of Hastings; Judge Benedict, of Vermontville; William Parrell, of Ada; Walter Brown, former county clerk, of Orangetown; Mrs. M. B. Ferrey, curator of the state historical museum.

J. C. Barnett, 55, a patient at the Pontiac state hospital, was instantly killed Friday night by a Grand Trunk train backing into the depot at Huron street. Barnett was committed to the institution from Detroit three years ago.

Beginning October 1, postoffices at Cashion and Denton, west of Wayne, will be discontinued. Patrons from these towns will be served from Belleville. Patrons at both places are registering strong protest to the new order. Hereafter they will receive one mail a day.

J. D. Edmonson, of Ann Arbor, was elected president of the teachers' retirement fund board at a meeting here Friday afternoon. Superintendent of public instruction Fred L. Keeler was elected secretary and Deputy Superintendent John M. Munson was named as clerk.

LETTER FROM STATE CAPITOL

BETTER CONDITIONS AT BOYS' SCHOOL AT LANSING ARE PROMISED.

GOVERNOR WINS HIS POINT

Supreme Court Grinds Out Several Decisions, Justice Persons Writing His First Opinion in Interesting Case.

[By Gurd M. Hayea.]

Lansing—"The better the conditions at the school here, the better the boys will be when they leave the institution," was Governor Ferris' parting statement to the board of control and superintendent of the industrial school for boys at Lansing, followed a two hours' hearing Thursday at which the governor severely criticized the methods employed at the school.

The result of the hearing was twofold. Admission of every charge made by the governor, with possibly a few exceptions, was gained from the board. Superintendent Lawson will be given a chance to carry out the new methods advised by the governor and failure of accomplishment means dismissal.

Not only was the governor prepared with statements backed by affidavits in his position, but Fred L. Keeler, state superintendent of public instruction, told the board members that the governor's position with reference to the teaching department of the school were absolutely correct, as an investigation by him had developed.

"You have 14 cottages at the school here, which constitute 14 country schools with no unity at all," declared the governor. "Your teachers are unfit for the work, are underpaid and are not getting results. The idea that the boys in this institution have to be taught differently than in any public school is nonsense. What I desire is, if you do not desire to adopt the methods I have outlined, working through the state superintendent of public instruction, call in a committee of three or five men who are up on education and let them investigate and report to you. If their findings do not coincide with mine, I am willing to resign as governor of Michigan."

Franklin Sayre, of Flushing, one of the three board members, took exception to the governor's remarks and said the school was one of the best conducted in the United States. Pinned down, the governor made him admit that he had visited only one other institution of a like character in the country.

Superintendent Lawson was rather sarcastic at times, but the governor pushed a hush to his remarks when he flatly asked Lawson what objection he had to improving the school. Both Lawson and Sayre answered that they had no objection, whatever.

Lawson admitted that, but two towels, changed only twice each week, had been allowed 40 boys in a cottage, but that now they receive three towels a week.

Lawson also admitted that the boys at the school did not have a single tooth brush.

Governor Ferris said Assistant Superintendent Daymude was guilty of taking extreme measures to discipline unruly inmates, and it was the governor's suggestion that Daymude be relieved of further responsibility. The governor also said that he had reliable information that J. Merritt Hewitt, another employee of the school, was guilty of beating the boys unmercifully and that he should not be permitted to remain in a position where he had an opportunity to exercise punishment. This matter will be taken up at another meeting and undoubtedly both men will be called before the board and the governor to answer charges made by the chief executive.

"There's another matter I want to call your attention to," said the governor. "I want you to see that the teachers desist from having the boys here march the lockstep, prison style. It's not needed and should be abolished."

As the result of an opinion penned by Justice Rollin H. Person and concurred in by other members of the supreme bench, the Detroit & Mackinac railroad will have to pay $800 to William Moss, aged 17, of Saginaw, which is the amount of damages awarded the lad by a jury in the circuit court after he had been carried past his destination by the railroad and forced to walk eight miles through the snow.

From the record in the case it appears that William Moss and his younger sister left Saginaw December 23, 1911, to visit their grandparents at Linwood. At that time Moss was 13 years old. Their father purchased tickets and placed the children in the custody of the conductor who promised to put them off at the train at Linwood.

It appears that the children made some inquiry after they had been on the train for some time and the conductor informed them that they had passed Linwood and had better get off at once. They left the train at Mitchie, a flag station on the Detroit and Mackinac line and started back the track for Linwood, a distance of eight miles.

The lad was burdened with a suit case weighing 15 pounds. It was a cold day and as a result of the long walk he contracted pneumonia and his sister was also seriously ill. In another case against the company damages were recovered for the girl.

This opinion was the first written by Justice Person since he was appointed to succeed Judge McAlvay, who died several weeks ago.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Let less meat if Kidneys feel like lead or Bladder bothers you—Meat forms uric acid.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Owing to the fact that the "blue sky law" was amended by the last session of the legislature, the supreme court dismissed a case started two years ago by Burton Howe and Claude H. Corrigan to restrain the Michigan securities commission from enforcing the provisions of the act. The amended laws was recently attacked in the federal court by Chicago brokers.

The supreme court sustained the ruling of the industrial accident board in awarding compensation to Mrs. Emma Fitzgerald whose husband died from blood poisoning following an injury sustained while in the employ of the Lozier Motor company. The compensation board awarded Mrs. Fitzgerald $7.21 per week for a period of 300 weeks.

A case of considerable interest to Ingham county was decided when the supreme court held that Mrs. Mary Thayer was entitled to a farm of 40 acres in Aurelius township which had been left to Edward Thayer, her brother-in-law, by the provisions of her divorced husband's will.

When Mrs. Thayer's divorced husband, John Thayer, died, the farm property was left to his brother, but Mrs. Thayer contested the will claiming that John was mentally incompetent at the time of his death. The circuit court of Ingham county awarded her the property and the supreme court affirmed the ruling of the circuit judge.

In 1892 John Thayer left his family and went to South Dakota and after several years fled suit in the Dakota courts to divorce his wife. She filed a cross bill and was awarded the decree. The court gave her the farm near Mason, but owing to the fact that a court from another state has no authority to transfer Michigan property this provision of the decree was void.

This left Mrs. Thayer with four children and no property. However, she ran the farm successfully until John Thayer's death when by the terms of his will the property reverted to his brother. Now, as a result of the decision of the circuit and the supreme court the farm is the property of Mrs. Thayer.

The state livestock sanitary commission, with the help of Governor Ferris, has closed the state of Michigan absolutely against cattle of any description, coming from Illinois. This quarantine is inspired by the prevalence of foot and mouth disease there and is in line with the plans of Detroit commission members.

The new proclamation even goes further than the one issued last winter during the general epidemic. Under that one cattle intended for immediate slaughter could be admitted, but this new order bars even all animals for immediate slaughter.

Saturday night President Halladay of the commission held a conference in Detroit with representatives of the packers there, in which the entire situation was discussed. Some of the packers wanted the immediate slaughter exemption retained, but the commission would not listen to such a proposition. The order had already been prepared before the conference was held.

Mr. Halladay says the new order is not the result of any startling developments in Illinois, but the commission has come to the conclusion that an absolute quarantine is needed.

"This step we are taking not only protects Michigan cattle within the state, but will enable Michigan owners to ship to other states without any suspicion of infection. If we bar absolutely Illinois cattle, no other state can raise any question as to admitting our cattle," said Mr. Halladay.

What is said to be one of the most far-reaching decisions ever handed down by the Michigan railroad commission is embraced in an order in the case of the Camden Rural Telephone Co. and the Reading Central Telephone Co. against the Michigan State Telephone Co.

The complaint alleges: "Discriminations and interference with the independent business and refusal to route independent calls over independent lines; a center checking scheme to delay and hinder independent class calls, the question of contract and the observance of it between the Reading Central Telephone Co. and the Southern Michigan Telephone Co. effecting territorial rights in the southwest quarter of the country."

Reserving to the Reading company, exclusive toll rights in that territory, together with rights of other independent companies doing business through Hillsdale are affected by the order.

Before any money is collected or permanent plans made for the administration of the law, the members of the board want to be sure that the measure is constitutional and it is expected that the supreme court will be asked to pass upon it before the first of the year.

It is expected that more than 200 osteopaths of Michigan will be at Grand Rapids October 27 and 28, to attend the convention of the Michigan State Osteopathic association.

MICHIGAN'S MANUFACTURING INDUSTRIES

FIRST ARTICLE

(From "Michigan—the Land of Plenty.")

NO state in the Union offers greater opportunities to the manufacturer than Michigan. The history of the growth of the manufacturing industries of the state is proof conclusive of the truth of this assertion. While the growth of manufacturing industries has been closely related to the development of the splendid transportation facilities of the state, yet the rapid advance in manufacturing dates back as far as 1825, when the Erie canal, affording connection with the eastern seaboard, was opened. The transportation facilities of the state at present, both by rail and by water, are excellent. With over nine thousand miles of railroad, Michigan is sixth state in the Union in its length of trackage. The state borders on four of the great lakes, which furnish splendid rail and water transportation facilities, the state is most fortunately located with reference to the great markets of the country. It should be noted that Michigan is located but a short distance from the center of population of the country, thereby giving the state remarkable market advantages. New York, Buffalo, and in fact the entire East is a ready and accessible market for Michigan products. Cleveland, Indianapolis, St. Louis and the other cities of the South are within easy reach. Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis and other cities of the West likewise receive their portion of made-in-Michigan goods. There are, perhaps, two other features that place Michigan in the fore rank as a manufacturing state. One is the abundance of water power afforded by the many rivers and streams, and, second, the varied manufacturing industries within its borders.

Importance and Growth of Manufacturing.

Michigan has for many years been one of the leading manufacturing states. In 1849 the value of its manufactured products amounted to $11,169,000; by 1869 it had increased to $118,395,000, and in 1909 it amounted to $685,109,000. The early development of manufacturing in the state was due largely to the utilization of its extensive forests, while the growing markets afforded by the rapidly developing West, and advantageous situation of the state with respect to the markets of both the East and the West, and its important agricultural and mineral resources have also been influential factors in its later progress.

During 1849 an average of 9,344 wage earners, representing 2.3 per cent of the total population of the state, were employed in manufacturing, while in 1909 an average of 231,499 wage earners, or 8.2 per cent of the total population, were so engaged. During this period the gross value of manufactured products per capita of the total population of the state increased from $23 to $244. The proportion which the manufactures of the state represented of the total value of the products of manufacturing industries in the United States increased from 1.1 per cent in 1849 to 2.8 per cent in 1899 and 3.3 per cent in 1909. The growing industrial importance of Michigan is indicated by the fact that in the value of manufactured products it has advanced from seventeenth place among the states of the Union in 1849 to ninth in 1899, eighth in 1904, and seventh in 1909.

In 1909 the state of Michigan had 9,159 manufacturing establishments, which gave employment to an average of 271,071 persons during the year and paid out $158,838,000 in salaries and wages. Of the persons employed, 231,499 were wage earners. These establishments turned out products to the value of $685,109,000, to produce which materials costing $368,612,000 were utilized. The value added by manufacture was thus $316,497,000, which figure best represents the net wealth created by manufacturing operations during the year.

Steel Pipe Piles.
Piles of steel pipe 14 inches in diameter and three-quarter inch thick have been driven for the new quarantine landing at Balboa, Canal Zone, and their tops have been cut off level by an acetylene torch—some cuttings being completed in four minutes. About two feet of concrete in the bottom end served to sink the pipe, which, after being driven, was filled to the top with re-enforced concrete. A ballasted frame 24 feet high by 20 feet long and 12 wide was used to guide

Manufactures.

Five leading industries of Michigan as measured by value of products—1909:

Industries.	Value of products.
Automobiles, including bodies and parts.....	$96,531,451
Lumber and timber.....	61,319,023
Foundry and machine shop.....	45,399,023
Flour mill and grist mill.....	34,380,800
Furniture and refrigerators.....	23,641,584

Automobiles.

The manufacture of automobiles in Michigan on any considerable scale commenced in Detroit less than a decade ago, although it had been carried on to a limited extent prior to that time. The industry developed rapidly, and by 1904 Michigan had become the leading state in the manufacture of automobiles, which position it held in 1909. In 1904 Michigan contributed 26.6 per cent of the total value of products for this industry for the country as a whole, while in 1909 the proportion had increased to 35.8 per cent. The total value of products for this industry in Michigan in 1909 was $96,531,451, which was more than twelve times the amount reported for 1904, while the value added by manufacture in 1909 was over nine times that reported in 1904. Of the total value of manufactured products and value added by manufacture for the state in 1909, the automobile industry contributed 14.1 per cent and 13.5 per cent, respectively, while of the total increase of $255,989,000 in value of products for all manufacturing industries in the state from 1904 to 1909, $88,654,000, or over one-third, was reported for this one industry.

Lumber and Timber Products.

This industry in Michigan dates from 1834, when the first steam saw-mill was built in the Saginaw valley. Its growth thereafter was very rapid. In 1849 there were 558 establishments reported, which employed an average of 2,730 wage earners and turned out products valued at $2,464,000. The industry was at first concentrated along the valleys of the Grand, Saginaw and Muskegon rivers and their tributaries, and at such lake ports as Alpena, Manistee, Ludington, Cheboygan and Grand Haven. Until the rise of the automobile industry, this was the most important industry in the state as measured by value of products, and it still continues to lead all others in number of establishments, average number of wage earners and amount paid in wages. The supply of timber in the state has been declining steadily, and the value of products showed a decrease both from 1899 to 1899 and from 1899 to 1904. Since 1904, however, the industry has shown a slight increase in this respect. In 1909 the total value of products reported for this industry was $61,319,023 and it gave employment to an average of 35,627 wage earners during the year. Until now the cut consisted very largely of white pine, but the depletion of the great white pine forests, which made Michigan at one time the foremost lumber state, has necessitated the utilization of other woods, of which the state has a considerable supply. In 1909 the combined output of soft wood formed only a little over one-half of the total cut. Hemlock contributed nearly two-thirds and white pine only about one-fourth of the soft wood, while small quantities of spruce, cedar, tamarack the piles, and was moved about by a derrick barge.

Cost of Sugar Beets.

A recent investigation into the cost of sugar beet growing in England showed that the expense incurred by the farmer in growing an acre of sugar beets was approximately $40, representing a cost per ton of beets of $4.15. The charge for loading and transportation brought the cost of the beets delivered at the factory up to $6.10 a ton.

and balsam fir were also reported. Maple was by far the most important of the hard woods, while beech, bass,

Per cent of total for all industrial products in the State.	Value of average products, number.	Per cent of total for the industry in United States.	Value of average products, number.
44.1	11.0	38.8	32.6
9.0	15.4	6.3	5.1
5.6	9.4	3.7	4.1
5.3	9.7	3.3	2.9
4.2	7.2	11.9	12.8

wood, birch, elm and oak constituted most of the remainder. The state still ranks first in maple and beech.

Foundry and Machine-Shop Products.

In addition to the general class of foundries and machine shops, this industry also includes establishments which manufacture bells, gas machines and meters, hardware, plumbers' supplies, steam fittings and structural ironwork. The industry was really of greater importance in the state than is indicated by the statistics, as some machine shops manufactured a distinctive product and were assigned to other classifications. A number of the most important establishments were engaged in the manufacture of cast-iron radiators and boilers for steam cranes and pile drivers. The gross value of products increased from $25,430,000 in 1899 to $45,399,000 in 1909, or 78.5 per cent for the decade.

Food and Kindred Products.

This group of industries in Michigan includes seven industries, namely: Flour mills and grist mills; the butter, cheese and condensed milk industry; slaughtering and meat packing; the manufacture of food preparations; bakeries; the beet-sugar industry, and canning and preserving. The classification, "Food Preparations," includes the statistics for the factories which manufacture fancy cereals, mince meat, canned soups, and similar preparations as chief products. The canning and preserving industry embraces all establishments in which fruit, vegetables and fish are canned or preserved, as well as those which prepare pickles, preserves and sauces. In 1909 there were 1,980 establishments reported for these seven industries, which employed 19,978 wage earners and manufactured products valued at $100,605,000, adding $26,480,000 to the cost of materials by the process of manufacture. This group of industries, however, is of much less importance relatively when measured by value added by manufacture or average number of wage earners than when measured by value of products, owing principally to the comparatively simple processes involved in the manufacture of flour-mill and grist-mill products, and butter, cheese and condensed milk, and in slaughtering and meat packing. Each of these seven industries showed a noteworthy increase in value of products during the decade, the largest percentage of gain being that of 554 in the beet-sugar industry and the smallest that of 61.1 in the flour-mill and grist-mill industry.

WAYS WITH CHOCOLATE.

Chocolate is such a general favorite with everyone that any dish or combination using it will not come amiss.

Chocolate Pie.—Take a pint of milk, a pinch of salt and a half a cupful of butter; put on to boil, add a half cupful of grated chocolate, a half cupful of sugar, well mixed with a quarter of a cupful of flour; cook until smooth. Flavor with vanilla and bake in a bottom crust. Cover with whipped cream. This makes a good sized pie.

Chocolate sauce to serve with ice cream or as a pudding sauce is delicious. Mix well one-half cupful each of grated chocolate and sugar, add a half cupful of cream and heat slowly until well blended.

Chocolate Gelatin.—Take a pint each of milk and cream, a half cupful of sugar, a half box of gelatin, two ounces of chocolate and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Cover the gelatin with one-half cupful of cold water and let soak for half an hour. Put the milk over the fire, adding sugar and chocolate, then the gelatin. Take from the fire and add the vanilla and fold in the whipped cream when it is cool. Set away to chill in a mold.

Chocolate Fudge.—Take a half cupful of milk, two cupfuls of sugar, a square of chocolate and a third of a cupful of corn syrup. Cook together, adding a tablespoonful of butter during the boiling. When a ball is formed by dropping in cold water, remove and stir, adding nuts if desired. Let it cool a while before stirring or set it into a dish of cold water while stirring.

Cream puffs filled with a chocolate mixture dipped in chocolate frosting make a most delicious small cake.

Chocolate Filling.—This is a most delicious filling or frosting for a plain chocolate cake. Take a cupful of sugar, five tablespoonfuls of cream, one egg beaten and two squares of chocolate, cook in a double boiler for an hour. Then beat and when thick enough put on the cake.

THE APPETIZING APPLE.

In spite of the fact that the apple was the downfall of our ancestors, we still enjoy the forbidden fruit, and without doubt it has a large place in our affections. There are apples of some variety in the market the year round, but the winter apple is the favorite.

It would almost seem that there had been everything said about serving apples, but some new combination or arrangement is springing up each day. For the common baked apple, to add to its attractiveness a marshmallow placed on top while they are still hot, or even before they come from the oven, makes a pretty garnish. Serve them with whipped cream. Whipped cream with a cube of jelly or a sprinkling of nuts on baked apples affords a pleasing change. Fillings for cored apples that are to be baked are many. Nuts, raisins, candied cherries or dates and figs chopped and mixed with lemon juice. Chopped hickory nuts is another well-liked filling; prunes, too, give a delicious variety.

Apple Conde.—Carefully stew sliced apples in a rich sirup, being careful to keep them unbroken. Cook rice and pack it into cups to mold, setting it on ice to chill. Turn out the rice, serving plates, arrange the apples neatly around the mold, then pour the hot sirup over all. Surround with sweetened cream and serve. Apple dumplings are favorites of the boys, young and old. Roll out a rich biscuit dough, cut in squares and wrap a cored, peeled apple in each square, pinching the corners to keep them tight. Bake and serve with sugar and cream.

Apple mixed with celery nuts and a plain boiled dressing served in pretty apple cups, which are made by scooping out the apple at the stem end after cutting off a neat slice leaving the stem in, makes a most fetching salad, dish and all.

Apples added to chicken salad make it go farther and are also an improvement.

An apple added to a potato salad is well liked, giving an added zest.

Life is an arrow—therefore you must know
What mark to aim at, how to use the bow—
Then draw to the head, and let it go!

THE TOOTHACHE OYSTER.

Although oysters are not so nutritious as we once were led to believe, they are easily digested and are most delicious flavor in many dishes.

Fried Oysters.—Dip oysters into beaten egg diluted with milk, then into crisp cracker crumbs. Fry in deep fat and garnish with sliced lemon.

Curried Oysters.—Allow six oysters to each person. Prepare a sauce by frying two large sliced onions in butter and mixing with two tablespoonfuls of curry powder, two ounces of grated coconut, a little sour orange and soup stock. Simmer for half an hour, thicken with flour, then add the oysters with their liquid. Simmer for three minutes. Then squeeze in the juice of a lemon and serve very hot.

Baked Oysters.—Take about two dozen oysters, two cupfuls of bread crumbs, half a pound of cheese and two cupfuls of milk. Butter a baking dish and cover the bottom with a layer of buttered crumbs, lay a layer of oysters on this and cover with cheese, seasonings and a layer of crumbs; add another layer of oysters but do not repeat again as three layers of oysters is not cook well. When the upper layer is done the middle one is uncooked. Finish with cheese and crumbs and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Two cupfuls of milk are added before the top layer of crumbs.

Cooked rice in place of bread crumbs is another method of baking oysters, and is well liked, omitting the cheese. The combination of cheese and oysters is not relished by everyone.

Grammar.

Grammar is the science, or art, of correct speech. It is quite true that some people are able to speak and write correctly without having studied the rules as laid down in grammar, but it is none the less true that for a knowledge of the rules the majority of people would write and speak in a most barbarous fashion.

Optimistic Thought.

Misfortunes we cannot prevent are mitigated by resignation.

Wisdom in Paying Just Demands.

A wise man will know that it is always the part of prudence to face every claimant and pay every just demand on your time, your talents, or your heart. Always pay; for, first or last, you must pay your entire debt.—Emerson.

Spell Cast by Good Talker.

"A good talker," said Uncle Eben, "is like a subject he don't know nuffin' about an' make somebody dat has studied it all his life feel terrible ignorant."

Boudoir Coat of China Silk

Slipped on over a frilly petticoat of silk, or one of platted crepe de chine, an embroidered coat of light-colored china silk is pretty enough to put one in a good humor in the early morning hours. Here is pictured a contribution from the Orient that is a thing of beauty and a joy as long as it lasts.

The coat is cut like a kimono, on the simplest of lines. It is somewhat longer than a three-quarter length, and is slashed up at each side to a depth of about eight inches at the bottom. There is a shaped band of silk about the neck and down the front opening. The fastening is made with frogs of silk cord that match the silk in color.

In the picture a coat is shown made in a lovely shade of grayish blue silk and lined with white silk of the same kind. The color makes the best of backgrounds for the long sprays of flowers and leaves that wander over the surface of the coat. The chrysanthemum, shaded from pink to white, is the flower so faithfully portrayed in the embroidery. The stems and leaves are in a soft gray green.

The embroidery appears at each side of the front and across the back, with one long spray extending down the side. Buds and leaves are scattered

Button Bag.

"Button, button, who's got the button?" It should be in your button bag, madam; but if you have not any, here is an odd little pattern that you might copy. Make a perfectly ordinary little bag with a square bottom and a drawstring. You may use natural-colored linen, and out of the same linen make four pockets for the outside of the bag, binding them with colored tape. The flaps of these pockets are fastened with the variety of button that is intended to be kept in each pocket. As decoration, you might embroider some sunbonnet babies and, instead of the bonnets, supply faces of painted buttons.

Fad for Furs and Feathers

All sorts of furs and all sorts of feathers are to be found in neckwear and millinery for the coming winter. Fur as a trimming for fabrics and in neckwear, and fur sets, appears to be better liked than in all-fur garments. Matched sets of three pieces, showing muff, neckpiece and hat trimming of the same fur, or all of them made up of some fur-trimmed fabric, are among the most elegant and practical offerings of the new season.

The neckpiece, and fur-trimmed turban at the right of the picture given here recommend themselves to maid and matron alike. As shown, the high pompon and soft collar are made of white angora, but the same idea is carried out in other furs such as martin and fox, or any of the long-haired skins.

The turban has a high crown covered with white satin and a smartly rolling brim of black velvet. The big fur pompon is its only trimming.

At the left a toque shape entirely covered with hackle feathers in black and Belgian blue is made to conform

Side Frills.

The fluffy side frill is in vogue again. A jabot thus adorned will do much to redeem a somber looking dress or an out-of-date waist. There should be a number of these fluffy frills lying about at home, as it was so popular a model not long ago. Those who must make them will need, for one jabot, half a yard of pretty insertion and from three-quarters to one yard of edging for the frill, according to the width of the frill.

Idaho Now Has a Seaport.

The completion of the Cello canal or the Oregon side of the Columbia river adds Idaho to the list of states having a seaport. It is now possible for steam-wheel river vessels to pass from the Pacific ocean to Lewiston, at the head of navigation on the Snake river, a distance of 480 miles.

GRAYLING, THURSDAY, OCT. 7

The preacher on the chautauqua platform gets better audiences than he did in the pulpit, and in addition they pay to hear him, when he may not tell them any more than their local preacher, or tell it any better—and the same audiences would consider it almost a crime to put more than 5 cents on the platter to hear the same preacher in church.

Have You Named Your Farm?

The movement to have every American farmer select a name for his farm and use the name as a trade mark, is meeting with great success in some parts of the country. Many of our exchanges have published lists of the names selected for the farms of their neighborhoods, the publication acting as a sort of a patent or copyright. It has been said by some unthinking persons that the plan is not American, but a little reflection will convince anyone that the point is not well taken. Washington called his home "Mt. Vernon," Jefferson, the great democrat, named his place "Monticello" and any schoolboy can give you a dozen other instances.

So name your farm and put the name out where everyone can see it. Make it a Trade Mark. A well known, advertised trade mark is worth thousands of dollars to the owner. Your farm and its products are your stock in trade. Name them and you have added real hard cash value to everything you sell. Choose a name suited to surroundings, a name that will tell in its very sound some of the characteristics of your business home; then come to us and have letterheads made for your correspondence with the name of your farm on them and your name and your wife's name and your postoffice address beneath. Of course you want your wife's name on your stationery. She is your partner and the best and truest, and the hardest working, and the most interested party in the whole concern. Once you were glad to get the chance to endow her with all your worldly goods, now make your promise real. Here's how your letter head might look:

EAST VIEW FARM.

JAMES and MARY SMITH,
 Proprietors.
 Columbus Station, Tomkins County,

If you like you can have a slogan, or a motto or a stock phrase under the farm name like this:

SHADY ACRES

Poultry, Eggs, Butter, Cream, Cheese.
 "BEST BY TEST."

J. and M. Smith, Managers.
 Columbus Station, Tomkins Co., Ohio.

Grayling People Praise Simple Mixture.

Many in Grayling praise the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler's-Ka. This remedy is the most THOROUGH bowel cleanser ever sold, being even used successfully in appendicitis. ONE SPOONFUL, relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it the gasses rumble and pass out. Adler's-Ka cannot gripe and the INSTANT action is surprising. A. M. Lewis, druggist.

The contractors for the heating plant at the school house seem to be delaying the carpenters in their work. It will probably take from three to four weeks to get the heating plant installed, which will be necessary before the floors may be laid. This will necessarily delay the completion of the building.

An Englishman and an Irishman met on Main street the other day, and the Irishman chaffing the Englishman about the seeming inactivity of the British troops, said "Unless England soon wakes up the Germans will take possession of the country." "Well," said the Englishman, "What will become of Ireland when England is beaten?" "Quoth the Irishman, scratching his pate, 'I remember that Ireland was Ireland when England wasn't much, and Ireland will still be Ireland when England's all Dutch.'"

Rumors have been afloat that a furniture factory is about to be instituted at Grayling. There seems to be no foundation for such talk, however anyone wishing to start such an enterprise would find it hard to obtain a better location. We have the timber and shipping facilities—the most important factors.

Messrs. Miller and Plumber, of Bay City, were in the city the first of the week looking over the city with the view of establishing an up-to-date laundry. They were well impressed with the local conditions and the interest manifest among the local people, but not being able to obtain suitable quarters, it is reported, have given up the idea of locating here.

Mrs. A. M. Lewis entertained the Portage Lake resorters at her home on Peninsula avenue Tuesday evening of this week. Bridge-whist was the program of the evening, however after a most enjoyable banquet, served by the hostess, at which she is a past master, the guests enjoyed themselves with social dancing. It was a most enjoyable party from start to finish.

The Finnish night school, held in the ward schoolhouse, south of the river, instituted by O. Palmer for the study of the English language, closed a six months term last week for vacation. Under the instruction of P. H. Virtanen, their progress has been almost phenomenal, considering the fact that nearly half of the class work in mills and factories at night, and cannot be regular in their attendance. Mr. Virtanen will return to Hancock this month, for his last year in the college in that city. His successor has not been secured.

"I must be going," she said, rising. "If you will give me my envelope?"

He crossed to the safe and got it for her. His curiosity was still keen, edged, but he beat it back manfully.

"I wish you wouldn't hurry," he said hospitably. He was searching the changeable eyes for the warrant to say more, but he could not find it.

He was obliged to let it go at that; but when they reached the phaeton and the horse-holding clerk had been relieved, he spoke of another matter.

"I'm a little worried about Kenneth," he told her. "He came down this morning looking positively wretched, but he wouldn't admit that he was sick. Have you seen much of him lately?"

"Not very much"—guardedly—"Did you say he had gone home?"

"I don't know where he has gone. He left here about half an hour before you came, and I haven't seen him since."

"And you are worried because he doesn't look well?"

"Not altogether on that account. I'm afraid he is in deep water of some kind. I never saw a person change as he has in the past week or so. You know him pretty well, and what a big heart he has?"

She nodded, half mechanically.

"Well, there have been times lately when I've been afraid he'd kill somebody—in this squabble of ours, you know. He has been going around—which was excusable enough, under the circumstances—and night before last, when we were walking uptown together, I had all I could do to keep him from taking a pot-shot at a fellow who, he thought, was following us. I don't know but I'm taking all sorts of unfair advantage of him, telling you this behind his back, but—"

"No, I'm glad you have told me. Maybe I can help."

He put her into the low basket seat, and tucked the dust-robe around her carefully. While he was doing it he looked up into her face and said: "I'd love you awfully hard for what you have done today—if you'd let me."

It was like her to smile straight into his eyes when she answered him.

"When you can say that—in just that way—to the right woman, you'll find a great happiness lying in wait for you, Edward, dear." And then she spoke to the Morgan mare and distance came between.

As once before, in the earlier hours of the same day, Miss Grierson took the roundabout way between the Raymer plant and Mereside, making the circuit which took her through the college grounds and brought her out at the head of upper Shawnee street. The Widow Holcomb was sitting on her front porch, placidly crocheting, when the phaeton drew up at the curb.

"Mr. Griswold," said the phaeton's occupant. "May I trouble you to tell him that I'd like to speak to him a moment?"

Mrs. Holcomb, friend of the Raymers, the Farnhams, and the Oswalds, and own cousin to the Barrs, was of the perverse minority; and, apart from this, she had her own opinion of a young woman who would wait at the door of a young man's boarding house and take him off for a night drive to goodness only knew where, and from which he did not return until goodness only knew when. So there was no stich missed in the crocheting when she said, stiffly: "Mr. Griswold isn't in. He hasn't been home since morning."

Miss Grierson drove on, and the most casual observer might have remarked the strained tightening of the lips and the two red spots which came and went in the damask-pleated cheeks. But it was not until she had reached Mereside, and had gained the shelter of the deserted library, that speech came.

"O pitiful Christ!" she sobbed, dropping into a chair and hiding her face in the crook of her arm; "he's done it at last—he's trying to hide, and that's what they've been waiting for! And I don't know where to look!"

But Matthew Broffin, tilting lazily in his chair on the downtown hotel porch, knew very well where to look, and he was watching the one thought of the hiding place as an alert, though outwardly disregardful, house cat watches a mouse's hole.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The Quality of Mercy.

On no less an authority than that of the great doctor who came again from Chicago for a second consultation with Doctor Farnham, Andrew Galbraith owed his life during the two days following his return to consciousness to the unrelenting care and devotion of one person.

Seconding the efforts of the physicians, and skillfully directing those of the nurses, Margery threw herself into the vicarious struggle with the generous self-sacrifice which counts neither cost nor loss; and on the third day she had her reward. Her involuntary guest and charge was distinctly better, and again, so the two doctors declared, the balance was inclining slightly toward recovery.

It was in the afternoon of this third day, when she had been reading to him, at his own request, the sayings of the Men on the Mount, that he referred for the first time to the details of the accident which had so nearly blotted him out. Upon his asking, she related the few and simple facts of the rescue, modestly minimizing her own part in it, and giving her companion in the catboat full credit.

"The writer-man," he said thoughtfully, when she had finished telling him how Griswold had worked over him in the boat, and how he would not give up. "I remember; you fetched him out to the hotel with you one day; no, you needn't fear I'll be forgetting him." Then, with a shrewd look out of the steel-gray eyes: "How long have you been knowing him, Maggie, child?"

"Oh, for quite a long time," she hastened to say. "He came here, sick and helpless, one day last spring, and—well, there isn't any hospital here in Wabaska, you know, so we took him in and helped him get over the fever, or whatever it was. This was his room while he stayed with us."

Andrew Galbraith wagged his head on the pillow.

"I know," he said. "And you're doing it again for a poor old man whose siller has never bought him anything like the love you're spending on him. You're everybody's good angel, I'm thinking, Maggie, lassie." Though he did not realize it, his sickness was bringing him day by day nearer to his far-away boyhood in the Inverness-shire hills, and it was easy to slip into the speech of the mother-tongue. Then, after a long pause, he went on: "He was wearing a beard, a red beard trimmed down to a spike—this writer-man, when you found him, was he?"

She shook her head. "No; I have never seen him with a beard."

The sick man turned his face to the wall, and after a time she heard him repeating softly the words which she had just read to him. "But if ye forgive not men neither will your father forgive." And again, "Judge not that ye be not judged." When he turned back to her there were new lines of suffering in the gray old face.

"I'm sore beset, child; sore beset," he sighed. "You were telling me that MacFarland and Johnson will be here tonight?"

"Yes; they should both reach Wabaska this evening."

Another pause, and at the end of it: "That man Broffin; you'll remember you asked me one day who he was, and I told ye he was a special officer for the bank. Is he still here?"

"He is; I saw him on the street this morning."

Again Andrew Galbraith turned his face away, and he was quiet for so long a time that she thought he had fallen asleep. But he had not.

"You're thinking something of the writer-man, lassie? Don't mind the clavers of an old man who never had a chick or child of his ain."

Her answer was such as a child might have made. She lifted the big-jointed hand on the coverlet and pressed it softly to her flushed cheek, and he understood.

"I thought so; I was afraid so," he said, slowly. "You say you have known him a long time; it canna have been long enough, bairnie."

"But it is," she insisted, loyally. "I know him better than he knows himself; oh, very much better."

"Ye know the good in him, maybe; there's good in all men, I'm thinking now, though there was a time when I didna believe it."

"I know the good and the bad—and the bad is only the good turned upside down."

Again the sick man wagged his head on the pillow and closed his eyes.

"That's a loving lassie, Maggie, and that's a' there is to it," he commented; and after another interval: "What must be, must be. We spoke of this man Broffin; I must see him before Johnson comes. Can ye get him for me, Maggie, child?"

She nodded and went downstairs to the telephone, returning almost immediately.

"I was fortunate enough to catch him at the hotel. He will be here in a few minutes," was the word she brought; and Galbraith thanked her with his eyes.

"When he comes, ye'll let me see him alone—just for a few minutes," he begged; and beyond that he said no more.

It was after the click of the gate latch had announced Broffin's arrival that Margery drew the shades to shut out the glare of the afternoon sun, lowering the one at the bed upon the instruments of the small house telephone set mounted upon the wall beside the door.

"Mr. Broffin is here, and I'll send him up," she said. "But you mustn't let him stay long, and you mustn't try to talk too much."

The sick man promised, and as she was going away she turned to repeat the caution. Andrew Galbraith's eyes were closed in weariness, and he did not see that she was standing with her back to the wall while she admonished him, or that, when she had gone to send the visitor up, the earpiece of the house telephone set had been detached from its hook and left dangling by its wire-cord.

Miss Grierson went on into the library after she had met the detective at the door and had told him how to find the upstairs room. When the sound of a cautiously closed door told her that Broffin had entered the sick-room, she snatched the receiver of the library house phone from its hook and held it to her ear. For a little time she knitted brows and the tightly pressed lips. Then she smiled and the dark eyes grew softly radiant. "The dear, dear old saint!" she whispered; "the dear, dear old saint!" And when Broffin came down a few minutes later, she went to open the hall door for him, serenely demure and with honey on her tongue, as befitting the role of "everybody's good angel."

"Did you find him worse than you feared, or better than you hoped?" she asked.

"He's mighty near the edge, I should say—what? But you never can tell. Some of these old fellows can claw back to the top of the hill after all the doctors in creation have thrown up their hands. I've seen it. What does Doc Farnham say?"

"What he always says; 'while there's life, there's hope.'"

Broffin nodded and went his way down the walk, stopping at the gate to take up the cigar he had hidden on his arrival.

"So Galbraith's out of it, lock, stock and barrel," he muttered, as he strode thoughtfully toward "I reckoned it'd be that-a-way, as soon as I heard the story of that shipwreck. And I ain't so blamed sure that it's Raymer a-holdin' the fort in them pretty black eyes. The old man talked like a man that had just been honeyfugled and talked over and primed pump up to the muzzle. Why the blue blazes can't she take her iron-molder fellow and be satisfied? She can't swing to both of 'em. Umph!—the old man wanted me to skip out on a wild goose chase to Frisco in that bond business, and take the first train! Sure, I'll go—but not today; oh, no, by gosh; not this day!"

It was possibly an hour beyond Broffin's visit when Margery, having successfully read the sick man to sleep, tiptoed out of the room and went by telephone stairs to shut herself into the hall telephone closet. The number she asked for was that of the Raymer Foundry and Machine works, and Raymer, himself, answered the call.

"Have you heard anything yet from Mr.—from our friend?"

"Not a word. But I'm not worrying any more now. I've been remembering that he is the happy—or unhappy—possessor of the 'artistic temperament' and that accounts for anything and everything. I've forgotten that for a few minutes, you know."

"Well!" she said, with the faintest possible accent of impatience.

"He has gone off somewhere to plug away on that book of his. I'm sure of it. And he hasn't gone very far. I'm inclined to believe that Mrs. Holcomb knows where he is—only she won't tell. And somebody else knows, too."

"Who is the somebody else?"

"Though the wire was in a measure public, Raymer risked a single word. "Charlotte."

"None of the sudden passion that leaped into Margery Grierson's eyes was suffered to find its way into her voice when she said: "What makes you think that?"

"Oh, a lot of little things. I was over at the house last night, and there is some sort of teapot tempest going on; I couldn't make out just what. But from the way things shaped up, I gathered that our friend was wanted in Lake Boulevard, and wanted bad—for some reason or other. I had to promise that I'd try to dig him up, before I got away."

"Well?" went the questioning word over the wires, and this time the impatient accent was unconcealed.

"I promised," it said this morning Doctor Bertie called me up to say that it was all right; that I needn't trouble myself."

"And I needn't have troubled you," said the voice at the Mereside transmitter. "Excuse me, as Hank Billingsly used to say when he happened to shoot the wrong man. Come over when you feel like it—and have time. You mustn't forget that you owe me two calls. Good-by."

After Margery Grierson had let herself out of the stifling little closet under the hall stair, she went into the darkened library and sat for a long time staring at the cold hearth. It was a crooked world, and just now it was a sharply cruel one. There was much to be read between the lines of the short telephone talk with Edward Raymer. The trap was sprung and its jaws were closing; and in his extremity he had turned to the woman who had condoned and shielded and paid the costly price, but to the other.

"Dear God!" she said softly, when the prolonged stare had brought the quick-sparking tears to her eyes; "and I—I could have kept him safe!"

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The Pendulum-Swing.

To a man seeking only to escape from himself, all roads are equal and all destinations likely to prove uniformly disappointing. Turning his back upon the iron works in the day of defeat, with no very clear idea of what he should do or where he should go, Griswold pushed through the strikers' picket lines, and avoiding the militant suburb, drifted by way of sundry outlying residence streets and a country road to the high ground back of the city.

In deserting Raymer he was actuated by no motive of disloyalty. On the contrary, so much of the motive as had any bearing upon his relations with the young iron founder sprang from a generous impulse to free Raymer from an incubus. If it were the curse of the Midas-touch to turn all things to gold, it seemed to be his own peculiar curse to turn the gold to dross; to leave behind him a train of disaster, defeat and tragic depravity. The plunge into the labor conflict had merely served to afford another striking example of his inability to break the evil spell, and Raymer could well spare him.

On the long tramp to the hills the events of the past few months marshaled themselves in accusing review. No human being, save one, of all those with whom he had come in contact since the day of dragon-bearding in the New Orleans bank had escaped the contaminating touch, and each in turn had suffered loss. The man Gavitt had given his name and identity; the mate of the Belle Julie had sacrificed what little respect he may have had for law and order by becoming, potentially, at least, a criminal accessory. The little Irish cab-driver had sold himself for a price; and the negro deckhand had earned his mess of fried fish. The single exception was Charlotte Farnham, and he told himself that she had escaped only because she had done her duty as she saw it.

And as the bedeviling thing had begun, so it had continued, losing none of its potency for evil. In the little world of Wabaska, which was to have been the theater of Utopian demonstration, the curse had persisted. The money, used with the loftiest intentions, had served only as a means to an end, and the end had proved to be the rearing of an apparently impassable wall of bitter antagonism between master and men. And the secret of the money's origin and acquisition, which was to have been so easily cast aside and ignored, had become a soul-sickness incurable and even contagious. Griswold was beginning to suspect that it had attacked Margery Grierson; that it had subconsciously, if not otherwise, thrust itself into Charlotte Farnham's life; and the days lately past had shown him into what depths it could plunge its wretched guardian and slave.

Now that the plunge had been taken and he had been made to understand that he must henceforth reckon with a base and cowardly underself which would not stop short of the most heinous crime, he told himself that he must have time to think—to plan.

Caring nothing for its roughness, he followed the country road into a valley forest of oaks. After an hour of aimless tramping he began to have occasional near-hand glimpses of the lake; and a little farther along he came upon the main-traveled road leading to the summer resort hotel at the head of De Soto bay.

Still without any definite purpose in mind he pushed on, and upon reaching the hotel he went in and registered for a room. Here he drew the window shades and lay down, and since the week of strife had been cutting deeply into the nights, when he awoke it was evening and a cheerful clamor in the dining room beneath told him that it was dinner time.

It is a trite saying that many a gulf seemingly impassable, has been safely bridged in sleep. Bathed, refreshed and with the tramping stains removed, Griswold went down to dinner with the lost appetite regained.

Early on the following day he sent a note to Mrs. Holcomb by one of the inn employees; but the copy of the Daily Wabaskan laid beside his breakfast plate made it unnecessary to telephone Raymer. The paper had a full account of the sudden ending of the lock-out and the resumption of work in the Raymer plant, and he read it with a curious stirring of self-compassion. As he had reasoned it out, there was only one way in which the result could have been attained so quickly. Had Raymer taken this way, in spite of his wrathful rejection of the suggestion? Doubtless he had; and on the heels of that conclusion came a sense of deprivation

When Scot Meets Scot.

A Scottish farmer was one day selling some wool to a carrier, and after weighing it in the yard he went into the house to make out an invoice. Coming back he missed a cheese which had been standing on a shelf behind the outer door and glancing at the bag of wool he observed that it had suddenly increased in size. "Man," he said to the carrier, "I have clean forgotten the weight o' that bag. Let's pit it on the scales again." The carrier could not refuse. Being duly

Find a Tusk Nine Feet Long.

Doctor Andrews of the British museum, with a staff of assistants, is busily excavating in the Upnor hills the most complete set of mammoth remains so far unearthed in England.

The professor has yet to determine whether the bones belong to the mammoth or the elephants antiquus. The teeth alone will furnish the necessary evidence upon this point, and the portion of earth where the skull lies embedded has not yet been cleared in except so far as to disclose the presence of a tusk measuring some nine feet in length.

that was fairly appalling, and the healthy breakfast appetite vanished. Griswold knew what it meant, or he thought he did. Margery Grierson was gone out of his life—gone beyond recall.

After that, there was all the better reason why he should grapple with himself in the fallow interval; and for two complete days he was lost, even to the small world of the summer resort, tramping for hours in the lake shore forests or drifting about in one of the hotel skiffs, and returning to the inn only to eat and sleep when hunger or weariness constrained him. On the whole, the discipline was good. He flattered himself that the sense of proportion was returning slowly, and with it some safer impulses. Truly, it had been his misfortune to be obliged to compromise with evil to some extent, and to involve others, but was not that rather due to the ineradicable faults of an imperfect social system than to any basic defect in his own theories? And was not the same imperfect social system partly responsible for the quasi-criminal attitude which had been forced upon him? He was willing to believe it; willing, also, to believe that he could rise above the constraining forces and be the man he wished to be. That he could so rise was proved, he decided, on the morning of the third day, when he chanced to overhear the hotel clerk telling the man whose room was across the corridor from his own that Andrew Galbraith still had a fighting chance for life. In the pleasant glow of the high resolve the news awakened none of the murderous promptings, but rather the generous hope that it might be true.

It was late in the afternoon of this third day, upon his return from a long pull in the borrowed skiff around the group of islands in the upper and unfrequented part of the lake, that he found a note awaiting him. It was from Miss Farnham, and its brevity, no less than its urgency, stirred him apprehensively, bringing a suggestive return of the furtive fierceness which he promptly fought down. "I must see you before eight o'clock this evening. It is of the last importance," was the wording of the note; and the heavy underscoring of the "last," and a certain tremulous characteristic in the handwriting, stressed the urgency.

It was still quite early in the evening when the inn conveyance set him down at the door of his lodgings in upper Shawnee street. To the caretaking widow, who would have prepared a late dinner for him, he explained that he was going out again almost at once; and taking time only for a bath and a change he set forth on the cross-town walk. It lacked something less than a half hour of the time limit set in Miss Farnham's note, but he attached no special importance to that. He knew that the doctor's dinner hour was early, and that in any event he could choose his own time for an evening call.

It nettled him angrily to find that the premonition of coming disaster was still with him when he crossed the courthouse square and came into the main street a few doors from the Winnebago entrance. Attacking from a fresh vantage ground it was warning him that the town hotel was the stopping place of the man Broffin, and that he was taking an unnecessary hazard in passing it. Brushing the warning aside, he went on defiantly, and just before he came within identifying range of the loungers on the hotel porch an omnibus backed to the curb to deliver its complement of passengers from the lately met northbound train.

Griswold walked on until he was stopped by the sidewalk-blocking group of freshly arrived travelers pausing to identify their luggage as it was handed down from the top of the omnibus. Alertly watchful, he quickly recognized Broffin among the porch loungers, and saw him leave his tilted chair to saunter toward the steps. Then the fateful thing happened. One of the luggage sorters, a clean-limbed, handsome young fellow with boyish eyes and a good-natured grin, wheeled suddenly and gripped him.

"Why, Griswold, old man!—well, I'll be dogged! Who on the face of the earth would ever have thought of finding you here? So this is where you came up, after the long, deep, McGinty dive, is it?" Then to one of his fellow travelers: "Hold on a minute, Johnson; I want you to shake hands with an old newspaper pal of mine from New York, Mr. Kenneth Griswold. Kenneth, this is Mr. Beverly Johnson, of the Bayou State Security bank, in New Orleans."

Thus Bainbridge, sometime star reporter for the Louisianian, turning up at the climaxing instant to prove the crowded condition of an overnarrow world, much as Matthew Broffin had once turned up on the after-deck of the coastwise steamer Adelantado to prove it to him.

While Griswold, with every nerve on edge, was acknowledging the introduction which he could by no means avoid, Broffin drew nearer. From the porch steps he could both see and hear. Bainbridge, cheerfully loquacious, continued to do most of the talking. He was telling Griswold of the streak of good luck which had snatched him out of a reporter's berth in the South to make him night editor of one of the St. Paul dailies. Johnson was merely an onlooker. Broffin's eyes searched the teller's face. Thus far it was a blank—a rather bored blank.

"And you are on your way to St. Paul now?" Griswold said to the newspaper man. Broffin, whose ears were skillfully attuned to all the tone variations in the voice of evasion, thought he detected a quaver of anxious impatience in the half-absent query.

"Yes; I was going on through tonight, but Johnson, here, stumped me to stop over. He said I might be able to get a news story out of his sick president." Bainbridge rattled on: "Ever meet Mr. Galbraith? He is the bank president who was held up last spring, you remember; fine old Scotch gentleman of the Walter-Scott brand."

"When did you leave New Orleans?" Griswold asked; and now Broffin made sure he distinguished the note of anxiety.

"Two days back; missed a connection on account of high water in the Ohio. Might have stayed town if we'd only known, eh, Johnson?" And then again to Griswold: "Remember that supper we had at Chaudiere's, the night I was leaving for the banana coast? By George! come to think of it, I believe that was the last time we foregathered in the— Say, Kenneth, what have you done with your beard?"

Something clicked in Broffin's brain. The final doubt was cleared away. Griswold was the man he had seen and marked when the two were saying good-by on the banquet in front of Chaudiere's.

Broffin's right hand went swiftly to an inside pocket of his coat and when it was withdrawn a pair of handcuffs, oiled to noiselessness, came with it. Deftly the man-catcher worked them open, using only the fingers of one hand, and never taking his eyes from the trio on the sidewalk. One last step remained; if he could only manage to get speech with Johnson first—

During the trying interval Griswold had been fully alive to his peril. He had seen the swift hand-passing, and he knew what it was the Broffin was concealing in the hand which had made the quick pocket dive. He knew that the crucial moment had come; and, as many times before, the savage fear-mania was gripping him. In the cold vision of it he had become once more the cornered wild beast.

Whooping Cough.

The Bureau of Laboratories of the New York board of health has been conducting an extensive investigation of whooping cough, and Dr. Paul Luttinger recently reported to the Medical association of the greater city of New York some of the results of that inquiry.

Among the most interesting conclusions reached is that the early part of the disease is the most infectious. The bacillus that is believed to cause it is rarely found in the sputum after the first week of the paroxysmal, or whooping, stage, so "there would seem to be no necessity for the child to be kept in the house for more than a week after the whoop appears."

Doctor Luttinger says physicians underestimate the seriousness of the disease and fail to report cases. Only 25 per cent of cases in a certain area were reported, and "probably not more than 10 per cent are reported in Greater New York."

Good Men Are Scarce.

Col. E. Polk Johnson of Louisville, who fought for the Confederacy, read something in the dispatches from the front the other day that reminded him very much of what happened when he was serving in the western army in the Civil war. "I remember it was a wet, cold, rainy night in the middle of winter," said the veteran, "when a long, lean chap in my regiment was ordered to go on picket duty. He thought the situation over for a minute and then he turned to the sergeant who had brought the message. 'You go right straight back whar you come from,' he drawled, 'and tell the cap'n I jest natchally can't do it. I got a letter from Gin'ral Bragg this mawnin', and he said good men was gittin' almighty skeere in this here army; and for me to take good care of myse'f.'"

Respirators for Air Raids.

As a result of the police warning advising people to keep all windows closed in the event of an air raid on London, and thus prevent the admission of deleterious gases, there has been a rush to buy respirators. Stores were sold out within an hour or two. The most popular form was that made of either nonflammable celluloid or rubber, except the mouthpiece. They have motor goggle fittings to protect the eyes.—London Globe.

BEYOND MEASURE OF YEARS

Geologic Time Cannot Be Computed by the Ordinary Methods of Science.

Scientists hesitate to estimate geologic time in terms of years. Such estimates have, however, been made, and one published by Prof. Charles Schuchert in 1910 states that about 12,000,000 years have elapsed since the close of the Carboniferous age, as the name suggests, in which great deposits of carbon, in coal, were formed in many parts of the world. This age has been divided by geologists into the Mississippian, Pennsylvanian and Permian epochs, of which the Mississippian is the oldest and the Permian the youngest. The Pennsylvanian epoch alone is estimated by Schuchert to have covered 2,160,000 years, and animal life is supposed to have existed on the earth for 14,000,000 years before that time. Geologic periods are recognized primarily by the animals and plants that lived in them, so that the study of fossils plays a very real and important part in the progress of geologic knowledge. Rocks of Carboniferous age, as shown in their fossils, have a wide distribution in the United States, and they are apt to abound in these remains of plant and animal life. The fossil shells which are found in them, however, may vary greatly from point to point, because the animals they represent lived in different periods of geologic time or in different regions in the Carboniferous ocean.

Why That Lame Back?

Morning lameness, sharp twinges when stooping, or dull, all-day backache; each is cause enough to suspect kidney trouble. Get after the cause. Help the kidneys. We Americans overdo, overeat, and neglect our sleep and exercise, and so we are becoming a nation of kidney sufferers. 72% more deaths from kidney disease than in 1880, is the story told by the 1910 census. If annoyed with a lame back and irregular kidney action, modify the bad habits and use Doan's Kidney Pills.

SCANDINAVIAN NEWS

SUMMARY OF IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS IN FAR OFF NORTHWEST.

ITEMS FROM THE OLD HOME

Resume of the Most Important Events in Sweden, Norway and Denmark—Of Interest to the Scandinavians in America.

SWEDEN.

A great Social Democratic peace demonstration took place in Stockholm a few days ago. Hjalmar Branting, the leading Socialist in Swedish politics, made an address in which he maintained that the Swedish people are practically united in their support of the policy of the cabinet. He also said that the nationality sentiment ought to be appreciated more than it is by the Socialists at the present time. No less than forty banners were carried in the procession. On the same day former Premier Karl Staaff conducted a meeting in Värmland. He dealt hard blows to the "activists" and demonstrated that the Swedish constitution is formulated as an intentional protest against all sorts of wild goose politics, and as a consistent assertion of the peaceful intentions of the Swedish people and its demand that these intentions be respected by the governmental organs of the state. At both meetings the applause developed into tremendous ovations.

The executive committee of the Swedish Fruit Growers' association has requested the government to authorize someone to report as to the advisability of having the national government assist fruit growers in putting down water pipes for watering the orchards. The committee has suggested that about $25,000 might be used for making experiments in this line. The committee further suggests that the largest loan to any fruit grower be $1,350, which is to begin to draw interest one year after the date of the loan, at the rate of four per cent a year.

The so-called Stockholm system, or rules for selling liquor in Stockholm, provides that a single man below the age of twenty-five years shall not be permitted to buy more than two gallons of whisky every three months. The sale is controlled by means of records kept by both seller and buyer. No man can buy whisky in Stockholm unless he brings his copy of the records of former purchases.

General Hjalmarson has returned to Stockholm after having completed negotiations with the Chinese government for the establishment of a Swedish gendarmerie in China. General Hjalmarson proposed the organization of a corps of 3,000 men in the province of Hunan, with 20 instructors, and also a central bureau in Peking, with a school for officers, the number of students to be 400 from the start.

A cargo of American coal recently arrived in Stockholm after a series of interferences. The vessel spent 35 days across the Atlantic; then it was picked up by the English and taken to Kirkwall, where it was kept for six days; next came the Germans and took it to Swinemunde, where it was also detained six days; after which it finally was permitted to proceed to its place of destination.

King Gustaf sent telegrams to the czar of Russia and the kaisers of Germany and Austria, expressing the pleasure and satisfaction of the king and the people of Sweden because they are permitted to transport captives of war through their country, thereby rendering humanity a valuable service.

Gov. H. Björkman of Umea, in his remarks on the report of the committee on public instruction, proposed that practice in picking berries be made a compulsory part of the work in the public schools. He suggests that certain days be set aside for this branch.

Hjalmar Branting, who has just returned from a trip to Berlin, Paris and London, got the impression that the war will last at least another year. The English, he says, are determined to keep up the war for years if need be.

Prince Eugen, on the occasion of his fiftieth birthday anniversary, donated $270 to the "Old People's Day."

The national board of health has granted subsidies to 15 provincial physicians in order that they may attend a post-graduate medical course in Stockholm.

The provincial government of Gade hesitates to give its support to the proposition of establishing holidays of a secular nature in summer. It is feared that such a step would interfere with the tendency to provide for a short vacation in summer.

The Swedish insurance companies that formed a syndicate for making it possible to pay the full amount of insurance even when the insured fell in war between Sweden and another power, have renewed this agreement for another half year.

The Swedish government charges $2,511 a day for carrying Russian, German and Austrian captives of war between Karungi in the extreme north and Trelleborg at the southernmost point of Sweden.

The national government has authorized its functionaries to sell wood from the government lands to the local supply commissions at fixed prices.

The running expenses of the post office department are put at $6,755,000 for the coming year.

DENMARK.

The Danish government recently made preparations to import American bacon and other meats because of the greatly increased prices of these products in Denmark. The first shipment has arrived on one of the Scandinavian-American liners. But the British government now informs Denmark that it will not permit any large importation of American meat as it is afraid the provisions will reach Germany. The Danish government is considering means of giving Britain guarantees. It is likely that the export of Danish cabbage, which goes mainly to the United States, soon will be prohibited, as the country is running short.

"Minnesota can go to school to little Denmark, in forestry," said C. C. Andrews, secretary of the Minnesota state forestry board, commenting on information received from the ministry of agriculture of Denmark relating to the extent and management of the state forests of that country.

The state forests of Denmark comprise altogether 205,920 acres, of which 90,000 acres are productive. The average annual cutting is about 40,000,000 board feet of lumber.

The total annual gross revenue in 1913-14 was $345,496, and it would have been much larger but for the fact that a large sum was spent on replanting the heath areas, from which no revenues will be derived for a long series of years.

Reforestation is effected by natural seeding and by planting. About 1,500 acres are planted annually.

Salaries of forest officials range from $300 a year to $2,000 with traveling expenses paid, while supervisors have the use of a house free of cost, and 30 to 80 acres of arable land. A graduated scale of pensions is allowed.

About 5,000 persons, or one-seventh of the population of the city of Aalborg, received aid from the public aid fund during the past year. The total outlay was about $40,000. The state government contributed about one-half of this amount.

Threshing has been started in the island of Fyen, and the yield of the rye is very satisfactory. Some of it has already been marketed, and by the time this is read thousands of people have had a taste of bread made from the crop of the year 1915.

NORWAY.

The Jaderen creamery is the largest rural creamery in Norway. During the past year it consumed 7,500,000 pounds of milk. The annual production is about 250,000 pounds of cheese and 300,000 pounds of butter. This creamery has always been the first one to adopt improved methods. It never had a cold storage building. But $8,000 has just been raised for remedying this drawback.

Bishop Tandberg has given a beautiful present to the Episcopal residence of Oslo. It is a large glass painting (6 by 8 feet) fitted into a bay window of his office. In the middle of it is a picture of Christ on the cross, and this is surrounded by profuse ornaments designed by Wold Tørne, the artist, and executed by G. A. Larsen, an art glazier.

Suift lye is a waste product from cellulose factories. For many years the manufacturers were unable to make use of this, though it was known to contain useful chemical ingredients. Now an engineer by the name of Landmark has succeeded in producing suift alcohol from this waste product. A factory is in process of construction at Skeen for exploiting the invention. The output will be about 250,000 gallons of suift spirit a year. This liquid can be used for running motors, etc.

Reports from the public libraries of Norway for the year ending June 30, 1914, show that the author having the largest number of readers is Jacob E. Bull. Some of the others come in the following order: Jonas Lie, Barbara Ring, Knut Hamsun and Bert Lie. It will be a surprise to many that Bjørnstjerne Bjørnson comes as No. 6. The explanation is, that the successors of Bjørnson have imitated his popular points and brought their stories more up to date. In the course of five years the number of libraries increased from 870 to a little over 1,000. During the same period the number of volumes increased still more, namely, from 530,000 to 850,000. The number of books taken out in a year increased from 1,200,000 to 1,830,000. Almost exactly one-half of the books are belletristic or fiction, and the rest are of a more or less scientific nature.

The German consul at Narvik hoisted his flag to the top of the mast while the bodies of the English victims of the torpedoing of the India were carried from the harbor to the cemetery. This incident caused general indignation in the city.

Carl Mygland has invented an apparatus for trimming trees. It is very simple and easy to carry. Different parties tried it last winter and spoke favorably of it. It is strong enough to cut twigs three inches in diameter and remains sharp for a long time.

The Norwegian foreign office has received a dispatch from Archangel, Russia, to the effect that the Arctic expedition headed by Capt. Otto Sverdrup, which has been searching for the Russian explorers, Ruessoff and Brusloff, has arrived there and that all the members of the party were well. Captain Sverdrup, with a crew of 20 Norwegians, sailed last year on board the Russian relief ship Elisepo for the Kara sea to rescue the geologist, Ruessoff, and the oceanographer, Kutichin, who left Spitzbergen for Nova Zembla in August, 1912.

ATROCITIES ARE DISAPPROVED

MORGENTHAU INSTRUCTED TO INFORM TURKEY OF SENTIMENT.

IS NOT OFFICIAL PROTEST

Affect of Note is Merely to Let Sultan Know That Friendly Relations Are Threatened.

Washington—Ambassador Morgenthau at Constantinople was instructed by cable Monday to inform the Turkish minister of foreign affairs that public sentiment in the United States was so stirred by the reports of the Armenian atrocities that unless the massacres ceased friendly relations between the American people and the people of Turkey would be threatened.

Officials made it clear that this message, though its importance was by no means minimized, did not threaten a break in diplomatic relations. Turkey already has let it be known that she will not permit interference by any foreign power with her so-called "Armenian policy." As American life or property has not been affected the United States government, without submitting an official protest, merely informs Turkey of the effect continued Armenian atrocities would have upon the American people.

Secretary Lansing said Monday that no representations had been made to Germany regarding the treatment of the Armenians by the Turks. It was learned, however, that Ambassador Morgenthau had reported that the German embassy at Constantinople had filed a protest on this subject with the Turkish foreign office. An announcement some time ago stated that the state department had asked Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador here, to bring the matter to the attention of his foreign office.

Farm Hand Shot By Hunter.

Albion—Benj. Shupe, farm hand on the Anthony farm, six miles west of Albion, has a bad wound on the side of his head which was inflicted by an unknown hunter. The stranger was shooting in a woodlot and Shupe went down to tell him hunting was prohibited on the farm. After a minute's talk, in which there was no semblance of heated argument, the hunter raised his gun and fired a load of birdshot at Shupe, who stood seven or eight feet away. Shupe has a bad scalp wound, but will recover. The stranger was not located. He took to his heels right after the shooting.

Dr. Holm Resigns State Job.

Lansing—Dr. M. L. Holm, former state bacteriologist, who was recently appointed by the state board of health to have charge of the branch laboratory in the upper peninsula at Houghton, has tendered his resignation. Dr. Holm says that there is altogether too much politics in the state board of health, and for that reason he refuses to accept the upper peninsula job.

Within a short time Dr. Holm will open a clinical laboratory in Lansing and will engage in the practice of internal medicine.

Lid Ordered For Chicago.

Chicago—Mayor Thompson, in a message Monday night to the city council, announced that the owners of all saloons in Chicago hereafter will be forced to obey the state law, which provides that they remain closed on Sunday.

The mayor ordered the city collector to notify in writing all persons holding licenses for saloons that they must comply with the requirements of the state law.

There are more than 4,000 saloons in Chicago.

A DOCTOR'S EXPERIENCE

Medicine Not Needed in This Case.

It is hard to convince some people that coffee does them an injury! They lay their bad feelings to almost every cause but the true and unsuspected one.

But the doctor knows. His wide experience has proven to him that, to some systems, coffee is an insidious poison that undermines the health. Ask him if coffee is a cause of constipation, stomach and nervous troubles.

"I have been a coffee drinker all my life, and when taken sick two years ago with nervous prostration, the doctor said that my nervous system was broken down and that I would have to give up coffee."

"I got so weak and shaky I could not work, and reading an advertisement of Postum I asked my grocer if he had any of it. He said, 'Yes,' and that he used it in his family and it was all it claimed to be."

"So I quit coffee and commenced to use Postum steadily, and in about two weeks I could sleep better at night in the morning feeling fresh. In about two months I began to gain flesh. I weighed only 146 pounds when I commenced on Postum and now I weigh 167 and feel better than I did at 20 years of age."

"I am working every day and sleep well at night. My two children were coffee drinkers, but they have not drank any since Postum came into the house, and are far more healthy than they were before." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms—Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

"There's a reason" for Postum.

Effect of Great Kidney Remedy Is Soon Realized

I feel it my duty to let you know what Swamp-Root did for me. I was bothered with my back for over twenty years and at times I could hardly get out of bed. I read your advertisement and decided to try Swamp-Root. Used five bottles, and it has been five years since I used it, and I have never been bothered a day since I took the last bottle of it. I am thoroughly convinced that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root cured me and would recommend it to others suffering as I did.

My husband was troubled with kidney and bladder troubles and he took your Swamp-Root and it cured him. This was about five years ago.

You may publish this letter if you choose.

Very truly yours,

TWISTING THE BULLET.

There seems to be some confusion as to just what is the object of the rifling in the barrels of firearms. An impression prevails that the quicker the twist the more accurate the rifle. There is no foundation for this belief. The object of cutting spiral grooves into the smooth bore of the barrel is to rotate the bullet so that it will travel point first. Sportsmen all know this, but they don't seem to realize that a bullet spinning too fast is inaccurate just as the one which spins too slowly.

Each different rifle and revolver bullet must have a rate of twist suited to its own particular weight, length, and general specifications which of course includes the speed at which it is to travel.

Another very popular belief is that the deeper the rifling the longer the barrel will wear. As a matter of fact if the rifling is too deep it is difficult to properly clean the corners of the grooves and Old Man Corrosion and his grown up son, Rust, make the most of the golden opportunity. Also, the lands (the spaces between the grooves) wear quickly when they cut too deep into the barrel. On the other hand if the rifling is too shallow the bullets strip through without rotating at all when the barrel becomes worn. As in most things, a happy medium is best.

1. I have a 12 gauge shotgun that is a taper choke bore. I have been told that if I use anything larger than 5 or smaller than 7 it will blow the muzzle off. Is there anything to it or not? What do you think of the taper choke bore?

Ans. There is no such thing as real taper choke bore, and even if there were, it would have no choking effect, as the choke depends for its effect on the jamming together of the shot just as they leave the muzzle. With any standard make of 12 gauge shotgun, full choke or otherwise, any standard factory loaded shell from the solid ball load down to the smallest shot may be used without harming the barrel.

I have a 12 gauge gun that is rusting slightly within an inch of the muzzle. There are also spots in each barrel about two inches from the muzzle that are raised like a blister. These spots are not rust. If you could give any remedy through the columns of your paper I should be much obliged.

Ans. I have found the best way to clean a shotgun is to use a brass scratch brush either made of wire gauge or the usual bristle type. Use oil on the brush and give your barrel a good scrubbing and I think you will find that the spots you mention will decrease somewhat. It is not possible just what these spots are due to without seeing them. I should imagine that they are probably caused by a combination of rusting and leading, that is to say, a rust on the bore scrapes off some of the lead of the shot. If so, the above remedy will practically cure the trouble.

1. How does pitting effect the barrel of a shot-gun?

Ans. A shotgun barrel which is only slightly pitted will shoot very nearly as well as a perfect barrel. The tendency would be to have irregular patterns, that is, if a series of shots were fired, there would be greater differences between the poor patterns and good patterns than if it were in perfect condition.

2. Is it safe to shoot 26 grains of Ballistite powder in the barrel of a badly pitted repeated shotgun?

Ans. It is rather difficult to answer this question without knowing exactly how badly pitted the barrel is. Unless the pitting is serious, I do not see how it could cause any trouble to shoot the load you mention.

1. I would like to know the speed of flight of wild geese, ducks, prairie chickens and quail.

Ans. Wild geese average 110 ft. per second; ducks vary according to variety from 75 to 145 ft. per second, the slowest being the Mallard and the fastest being the Canvas Back. Prairie chickens average 75 ft. per second, and quail about the same.

2. What is the speed of No. 8 shot and BB shot, fired from a 12 gauge gun with the average load of smokeless powder? What effect has a heavy load of smokeless powder on the shot over that of an average load of smokeless powder?

Ans. The average velocity of a shot charge from a 12 gauge shotgun, using 3 drams of powder and 1 1/4 oz. of shot is nearly the same with the different sizes of shot, that is, actual muzzle velocity. Of course the smaller the shot the quicker the velocity is lost. No. 8 shot will average 850 ft. per second over a 40 yd. range and BB shot would be slightly higher. A heavy load of smokeless powder such as 3 1/2 drams will run the velocity up 50 to 75 ft., and will have tendency to open up the pattern, that is, make the shot spread more.

3. What size shot should be used to shoot geese, ducks prairie chicken and quail?

Ans. For geese BB, No. 1, No. 2 and sometimes No. 3. For ducks, Nos. 4, 5 and 6; prairie chickens, 6 to 7; quail, 7 to 9.

4. Which of these should I have a full choke and which cylinder bore gun to hunt them with?

Ans. Full choke is absolutely necessary for duck and goose shooting, and open country for prairie chicken and quail. I would suggest your purchasing full choke because you can always use scatter load shells if you strike conditions which require more spread of shot than given by the regular loads.

HEALTH FIRST

Michigan's $100,000 War on Tuberculosis.

Monday Oct. 4th, marked the official beginning of Michigan's $100,000 war on tuberculosis. To rid the state of this disease, that and nothing less than that is the object of the State Board of Health. They do not expect that this will be done in two years, or five years; but during the next two years they hope to build up an organization in each county in the state that will be able to carry on the work indefinitely.

The first county to be visited is Wexford. Next in order will be Barry and Ottawa. In each case Dr. DeKleine and his helpers will spend one, two or three weeks in a county trying to interest the people in their immediate health problem. At some future time our own county will be visited.

Every campaign will include an attempt to locate each case of tuberculosis within the county and have nurses visit these patients in their homes to instruct them how to live and how to get well. It will include more-over a complete survey of the county, which will be invaluable as an index to what the real health conditions are. Moreover, the physicians of each county will be asked to co-operate with the agents of the State board of health. It is with the aid of the physicians that Dr. DeKleine and his helpers hope to locate the cases of tuberculosis in a given county not only, but it is they who can carry on the work after the state board workers have passed on to another place.

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan for the treatment of deformities and all nervous chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this trip, consultation, examination, advice free, making no charge whatever, except the actual cost of treatment. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result obtain to their friends and thus prove to the sick and afflicted in every city and locality, that at last treatments have been discovered that are reasonably sure and certain in their effect.

These doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases and so great a wonder of modern medicine that in many cases it is hard to find the dividing line between skill and miracle. Diseases of the stomach, intestines, kidneys, or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, tape worm, leg ulcers, weak lungs and those afflicted with long-standing, deep seated, chronic disease, that have baffled the skill of the family physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness often has been cured in sixty days.

According to this system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, goiter, piles, etc., as these diseases are treated without operation or hypodermic injection.

They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife, with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others may have told you, no matter what experience you may have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to see them at once. Have it forever settled in your mind. If your case is incurable they will give you such advice as may relieve and stay the disease. Do not put off this duty you owe yourself or friends or relatives who are suffering because of your sickness, as a visit at this time may help you.

Worn-out and run-down women or women, no matter what your ailment, consult them. It costs you nothing.

Remember, this last free offer is for this visit only.
